B) Report

i. Title: One Week Online Faculty Development Programme on “Scilab”

ii. Introduction

A highly informative One Week Online Faculty Development Programme on “Scilab” (Pandit Madan Mohan Malaviya National Mission on Teachers and Teaching) was conducted. It was organized by the Department of Computer Science in collaboration with the “Spoken Tutorial Project,” Indian Institute of Technology, Bombay.

- Scilab is Mathematical and Scientific calculation software, an open-source software substitute for MATLAB, very useful for all science and engineering researchers, teachers and students in academics particularly.
- Scilab also provides many numerical methods and is very easy to use even for people without prior programming experience.
- Also, Scilab is used for data analysis and computation, which is alternative for MATLAB as which is not open-source.

iii. Objectives of the Programme/ issues addressed:

- To provide a platform to the participant to acquire detailed knowledge about Scilab & different tools in Scilab.
- To aware the faculty members about the use of Scilab & its tools in the research.
- To familiarize faculty members with the optimization, statistics, Maths and simulation, signal processing, application development, 2-D and 3-D visualization and the control system design and analysis used in Scilab.
- To make faculty members aware about Scilab as a data analysis software that operates under the GPL license, allows users and programmers to improve their overall system.

iv. Details of Participants: There were total 1929 (1237 Male & 692 Female) Participants for this Online FDP on “Scilab”. Faculties from Science, Commerce and Arts were participated in this FDP.

v. Brief Summary of Events/ Sessions:

- Professor Kannan Moudgalya explained introduction to Scilab and various self-learning platforms through Spoken tutorials and their benefits.
- Further he elaborated, How Scilab is reliable, Use of Scilab in CNES, for space mission analysis and flight dynamics.
- Professor Kannan also explained Industrial application of Scilab, Matrix calculation in Scilab.
- He explained the installation process of Scilab on Windows Operating System. Demonstrated various vector operations, also provided the demo of Scilab on Cloud.
- Prof. Kannan convened file handling, user defined input and output, Integration and solving Non-Linear Equations using Scilab, along with that methods to solve linear equations such as Gaussian Methods & Iterative methods.

- Further he explained the interpolation concept which is the part of numerical methods, ODE Euler methods and its applications.
- Prof. Kannan described optimization using Karmarkar function, Digital Signal Processing, control systems, discrete systems, calling user defined functions in XCOS, simulating a PID controller using XCOS.

vi. Conclusion with feedback on the Programme:

- FDP helped to enrich the knowledge of faculties in Scilab through interaction with experts on the topics such as cross platform compatibility, free and open-source numerical computational package, interpreted high level language, matrix-based programming language with a versatile inbuilt mathematical library.
- Faculties have benefitted by this FDP and understood the basics of Scilab advanced Scilab for their research.
- Faculties have got the clear idea on how to use 2-D and 3-D graphical functions.
