B) Report

i.Title: “One day Bee keeping awareness programme”

ii.Introduction:

“No bee, no Human” this is the very famous statement of famous Agricultural scientist and father of Indian green revolution Dr. M.S. Swaminathan. From this statement we can understand the relative importance of Honeybees with crop pollination and food production.

The Apiculture is art, science and technique of culturing the honey bees for the production of Honey, Wax, Pollen, Propolis and Bee venom. In the beginning of beekeeping everybody fears about the Bee's sting. But by regular handling of bee colonies these never bite. Bee keeping involves apiary management, the knowledge of floral calendar, Bee health and disease management, Harvesting of honey and honey processing, collection of pollen, propolis and marketing etc.

In Apiculture the prime important step is to select a good quality bee to be cultured from bee species available as Apis dorsata, Apis carana, Apis indica and Apis mellifera. Second essential thing is management of apiary, plantation of multi-floral crops by farmer's. Lastly the harvesting, filtration processing and bottling is important for honey marketing. The most important significance of apiculture is the pollination of crops and incensement of 15- 30% yield of crop-production annually.

By keeping all these important aspects, role of honey bees in crop pollination, products of bee keeping and it's relation with self employability this programme was organized to inculcate the Beekeeping awareness among the students.

III. Objectives of the Programme / issues addressed:

- To upgrade the practical knowledge in Bee keeping.
- To inculcate the bee keeping among students to increase the self employability.
- To give the stepwise details of Bee colony management, installation of Bee box in farm.
- To provide the data for the handling of bee box, transportation of Bee colonies and enhance oneself in startup in Apiculture.

Students were satisfied by the Question Answer session conducted by both of these resources persons at last of their respective sessions.
