B) Report

i. Title: Poster Presentation on the Aquaculture Awareness

ii. Introduction

Aquaculture is a fast-growing food-producing sector that supports protein supply, rural livelihood, and environmental sustainability. To create awareness about modern aquaculture practices, the Department of Zoology and Fishery Science organized a Poster Presentation on Aquaculture Awareness. The program provided students with knowledge about aquaculture systems, fish health, breeding, water quality, and the economic importance of fish farming.

iii. Objectives of the Program

- To create awareness about the importance of aquaculture in food production.
- To educate students about sustainable fish farming and aquaculture systems.
- To enhance understanding of fish breeding, hatchery management, and water quality maintenance.

iv. Details of Student Participation

A total of 43 students (08 male and 35 female) actively participated in the poster presentation event.

v. Brief Summary of the Event

The poster presentation was held on 25.09.2025 with active participation from undergraduate students. Posters were displayed on themes such as sustainable aquaculture, water quality, fish nutrition, hatchery techniques, ornamental fish culture, and disease management. Faculty members guided students and shared key information on recent trends and best practices in fish farming. Students presented their posters effectively, showing creativity and scientific understanding.

vi. Conclusion:

The event was informative and successful in enhancing awareness about aquaculture and fishery science. A total of 43 students visited the department and gained knowledge through posters and departmental exhibits.
